SNAFU returns to the Edmonton Fringe with Little Orange Man

When Victoria-based company SNAFU toured their show Kitt & Jane: An Interactive Survival Guide to the Near-Post-Apocalyptic Future to the Edmonton Fringe in 2014 it rapidly sold out. Two years later SNAFU returns to the Edmonton International Fringe Festival with the prequel to Kitt & Jane, a show that “makes you feel like you are taking espresso shots with your inner child”: Little Orange Man.

Little Orange Man has won so many awards that they can no longer fit them all on the poster. In the story, eleven-year-old Kitt (the title character from Kitt & Jane) is troubled by a re-occurring dream. With no adults left in her world she can trust, she places an ad on Craigslist inviting a group of strangers into her subconscious to help fight her darkest battle. One part Inception, one part Pixar’s movie Up, and featuring SNAFU’s signature puppetry, Little Orange Man has been called “magical and touching...a must-see” by the Ottawa Citizen.

“Our opening night at the Edmonton Fringe will be our 88th performance of Little Orange Man,” says co-creator Ingrid Hansen, who has now toured the show to 21 different venues across the country. “I’m still gloriously terrified every time.”

★★★★★ — Onstage Ottawa
“Unbelievably funny” — PLANK Magazine
“Remarkable feats of puppetry” — CBC
